"Autumn in the Country"

Softly, softly, Autumn will call
Whispering in the fall
From the frosty window, berries appear
Bringing wild birds near
Boiling chest nuts there on the stove
I remember it all
Mother calling
Fall in the country
The warmest season of all

Brightly, brightly, shining their light
Stars would light up the night
In the sky there's a sight to behold
Northern geese take flight
Eating chestnuts, his tender smile
I remember it all
Father home then
Fall in the country
The warmest season of all

Sayonara, sayonara, Autumn made us grieve
To an island across the sea, on a ship he'd leave
Autumn evenings, we used to pray
I remember it all
Come back safely to
Fall in the country
The warmest season of all
