Well day after day, the world spins around us. Time after time the starship will arise from the earth to the heavens as we are bleeding out time, time, bleeding out time.

(Chorus) The starship's captain shouts through a hole, as we break through the atmosphere into the cold. We will touch all the things in our heavens above. Wishing for answers that are yet to be told.

Come for a walk, on to the moon as we drift into space in a tin can room. I'm hoping for a sign that will tell us the time of rapidly changing emotional bodies that keep us alive while we are bleeding out time, time, time, bleeding out time, time, time.

(Chorus)

As we break through the atmosphere the ship starts to rumble and a crack starts to form. We all stick together while we start to deform, because we don't need a ship to get to the heavens because our spirits will shine as we had been bleeding out time, time, time. Bleeding out time.
