Standing in the Line
(Barone)

For all the ladies standing in the line for all the people waiting for a sign
you cry, you cry.

For all the beggars reaching out a hand for all the soldiers crawling cross the sand
you cry, you cry.

For all the children staring into space as all the politicians fall from grace
you cry, you cry.

For all the prisoners held without a crime and all the angels dead before their time
you cry, you cry.

And ohhow I need to believe
But the devil deals with face cards up his sleeve
And ohif your tears were a sign,
I would put my life in your hands and stand in the line.

For all the creatures running out of luck and all the forests burning for a buck
you cry, you cry.

For all the ones that die without a cause and all the nations bombing to defend Gods laws
you cry, you cry.

And ohhow I pray that youre real
But the devil pulls a string we all can feel
And ohif your love was for free, I would stand alone at your door to hear you crying for me.

For all the people starving in the night for all the sailors looking for a fight
you cry, you cry.

For the beggars reaching out a hand and all the soldiers crawling cross the sand
you cry, you cry.

For all the ladies standing in the line and all the people waiting for a sign
you cry, you cry.
