Life's another word without a meaning
An item with no value
That's under our control

In my hands I'm holding every key
To the darkness I'll fall into Since living took it's toll

Searching for an open door
Finding that there aren't any more

Turn out the lights and close the door
Try and say the right words to get me off the floor
Take away the pain, the things I abhor
You've told me how great living is, now make me want
it more
Unsay the words
That brought me to the point of a knife
The only way out is a way that I'll enjoy
Drag me up after you watched me drown
Now hold me in your arms
And pull me back to shore

Take a look at the monster that's replaced me
It's stealing my life
And what I was too weak to hold

Take a step, hold back the hesitation
The bite will only burn
Because your heart is cold as ice

Looking for the final light
Realizing they've all faded to night

Turn out the lights and close the door
Try and say the right words to get me off the floor
Take away the pain, the things I abhor
You've told me how great living is, now make me want
it more
Unsay the words
That brought me to the point of a knife

The only way out is a way that I'll enjoy
Drag me up after you watched me drown
Now hold me in your arms
And pull me back to shore
