Wasn't more than half a mile between the city limit signs
The population was cut in half, the day they shut down the mine
Only thing that hasn't changed, the way the gossip spreads
Cindy Lou's nails & hairdo's and the Guntersville Gazette

When I got home from travelin', first paper I picked up Found the girl I thought was waitin', had waited long enough Right beside her smilin' face, under brides to be Said Saturday Miss Mandy Chase would be Mrs. William McGee

You never know from page to page whether you will laugh or cry
One page a baby's born, on the next an old friend died Get advice from Gabby's corner, all of that for just a quarter
I was raised, there's three things, you never questioned what they said
Grandpa, the gospel, and the Guntersville Gazette

Two lonely concrete islands sticking above the ground Underneath heartbreakin' headlines, Humpy's Gas &
Tires burned down Sally made the honor roll, the Cowboys finally beat the Jets
Read all about it in the Guntersville Gazette

You never know from page to page whether you will
laugh or cry
One page a baby's born, on the next an old friend died Get advice from Gabby's corner, all of that for just a
I was raised, there's three things, you never
questioned what they said
Grandpa, the gospel, and the Guntersville Gazette

Wise old men, a church house, a hand-cranked printin' press
Grandpa, the gospel, and the Guntersville Gazette
