Well my baby don't you know
That I've been waiting for so long now,
I want to tell you somehow
That you make me feel so right.
So I wrote you a little love song
To sing all the ways that you touch my heart.
May I sing for you?

I saw her walk across the street today,
I had no idea what I should say
To find myself close to her.
A girl like her is never alone,
She won't be tamed, she's never coming home.
She's had a hundred guys,
She'll have one hundred more.
She's no naughty girl but she likes to play,
She hunts you down and eats you up like pray
And then one day your turn comes around.
She sweeps your feet right off the ground
And then turns your world upside-down
And says to you that your time is through

Though you've been waiting for so long now.
I want to tell you somehow
That you make me feel so right.
So I wrote you a little love song
To sing all the ways that you touch my heart.
May I sing for you?

But I won't give up now.
There's no way that I'll back down, down, down.
Perhaps she'll be impressed
'Cause I want nothing else
Than you completely undressed.

I could call out loud if I knew your name,
Flirt a little if you want to play games
But either way it's time I make my move.
I go up to her (I'm a little bit scared),
The line's in my head so I go prepared.
I know what to say to make her mine.

But when my mouth opens she cuts right in
And says "I don't know where to begin".
She turns me down. So I say to her.

That you've been waiting for so long now.
I want to tell you somehow
That you make me feel so right.
So I wrote you a little love song
To sing all the ways that you touch my heart.
May I sing for you?
