The sun goes down on another romance and leaves a chill in your heart the wind blows cold on a victim of chance who waits for the summer to start.

Face the world alone
take your chances on your own when you feel the pressure like a stone it's time to face the world alone.

Many a time there were voices like wine that poured out their hearts in your ear.
They'd trigger your mind and turn on the sign that warned you: Beware what you hear !

Face the world alone

...

face the world alone

face the world alone
take your chances on your own

...

Such sweet delight seemed whiter than white and the waiting now over and done but a blue flashing light in the heat of the night reminds you of love on the run.

Face the world alone

face the world alone

...

face the world alone
