You look just like a stranger
And they're keeping you down
But still you're feeling the ties
Slippin and a sliding
Through the lost and found
In your egyptian disguise
What a thrill it is to see you
But I forgot your name
Oh oh what do you say
I carry you in my heart
And sometimes the memory smarts
I'm true to you
If you really think you want my love
I'm true to you
You never really wanted
What you already had
But then what have you got
Every little feeling
That you tend to bend
You keep it held in a slot
What a thrill it is to see you
But I forgot your name
Oh oh it's alright
You never want to feel contrite
I carry you in my heart
But sometimes the memory smarts
