

The Rifles

"Out In The Past"

Visit "Out In The Past" on MotoLyrics.com

This little town hasn't changed so much not since the time of night were we would lay out and talk but we couldn't be touched then you'd go away when the morning was light. but sure enough we had to grow up and there's nothing like a full time job to put out your fire we were young and wasn't in love but maybe we were happy getting carried away.

Now that seems so long ago out the door and down the road I sometimes think when I'm alone of the times we had but now we don't

And out in the past we were running around and sometimes so fast that you'd fall on the ground and it's so hard to stand you never could tell that all I saw was you.

And every place that we talk about don't seem to far way when you rely on yourself and the one your around and always believe everything that they say but little talk wasn't always enough and just cause your still in love doesn't mean your a lier we were young and that was enough but life has away of getting in the way.

Now that seems so long ago out the door and down the road I sometimes think when I'm alone of the times we had but now we don't

And out in the past we were running around and sometimes so fast that you'd fall on the ground and it's so hard to stand you never could tell that all I saw was you.

And out in the past we were running around and sometimes so fast that you'd fall on the ground and it's so hard to stand you never could tell that all I saw was you.

Visit The Rifles page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

