"Sleeping On Couches, Living In Dreams"

Like moving in new hotels with fast times, it's down like drive by's
No surrender when we wake up These shotgun blasts in concrete walls walking circles around my head
Watching people watching me

Fall out just to get back to you Fall out of my sleep Daydreams don't make much sense but they get me by Through the daylight I see you

Cold catching thoughts on long walks home spark bright delusions in my mind
Of what we found when we saw you Sneaking through backyards, taking the longest routes home when I just can't tell Why you're still following me

It hasn't been that long and I already miss you
When I get off that plane I'll see you waiting
