

John Popper & The Duskray Troubadours

"End Of The Line"

Visit "End Of The Line" on MotoLyrics.com

At the end of the line there are broken hearts and dreams all left behind With no family name, no dependents to claim, only pain at the end of the line I remember a time when you were mine and the sun, for us, did shine
But darkness can grow as black as coal Now we're lost at the end of the line

There's no use to reminisce when rewinding just reminds me of the last words from your lips Set it loose and set it free 'til I find someone who loves me half as much as you say you don't love me

We had a sweet ride with love at our side, though the road did twist and wind As we pull away, nothing left to say, just goodbye at the end of the line
Just goodbye at the end of the line

Visit John Popper & The Duskray Troubadours page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.