Rivers running, mountains rising, sun is shining in the sky
We'll go walking on this morning, love is dancing in your eyes
You bring everything to life, all the things that we pass by
And we don't even have to taste the berries that are hanging in between the thorn and vine
For this love of yours and mine is sweet as any fruit could grow
And we don't even have to try for love has made it so
Moon is growing, evening falling down into the changing tide
Above the mist the stars are shining, dreams are scattered to the sky
The way the owl spreads her wings, the way the night time crickets sing
And we don't even have to fill the wishing well with pennies or cast our hearts into the sea
This is where they're meant to be and they already seem to know
And we don't even have to try for love has made it so
I don't have to try to love you
Just take my hand and walk with me awhile
Travel on until tomorrow
We can walk another 50 million miles

I don't have to try to love you
Just take my hand and walk with me awhile
Travel on until tomorrow
We can walk another 50 million miles

As the days and nights grow cold, we'll gather all the warmth within
We are happy, we will be laughing, no matter what we lose, we win
All of life for you and I, all the things that make us high
And we don't even have to search for beauty, watch for magic
Listen to the melody in between the wind and leaves where apples make the limbs hang low

And we don't even have to try for love has made it so
And we don't even have to try for love has made it
