Fear is the only sign upon his face as he walks alone through this silent storm
towards his waiting day time is no longer standing by his side for his cry we share, remaining there through the day we die and we turn our backs and wonder
why life goes on to feel as the light is slowly blown away
through this solitude there's no open view and no words to say
pray
for the souls of many who slip away and to understand that it's close at hand
will it always mean a friend and alone his soul is crying while life goes on
and we turn our backs and wonder
why life goes on
all the
life that now slips through his fingers for all of the times we live without care
mind and heart now both screaming for reason as to why there
is nothing to hear
suddenly learning...
learning the toll
