"One Day"

Smell of nightmare
The light of the car
Shout through the night
But too hard to fight
The fear of submission
The anger of this vision
To dive into frozen water
And to breathe again, later

She's falling down like a broken doll
She's falling down into a long dark hole
But one day she hopes to forget
But one day she'll stop to live in quiet

She's falling down like a broken doll
She's falling down into a long dark hole
But one day she'll stop crying
But one day she'll stop thinking about dying

Creepy voices in the memory
Shadows of her enemy
But please no mercy
Even if it happened truly
To learn to live in silence
No more cries and violence
In the quest of tenderness
No more lies and distress

She's falling down like a broken doll
She's falling down into a long dark hole
But one day she hopes to forget
But one day she'll stop to live in quiet

She's falling down like a broken doll
She's falling down into a long dark hole
But one day she'll stop crying
But one day she'll stop thinking about dying
