A hand stretched out trying to catch your tears things never are as they appear you know you hear how the tears are searing a hand stretched out just as the tears start searing they begin disappearing a hand stretched out not knowing what the crying was all about not fearing the searing of your tears a hand stretched out holding the tears of your broken heart keeping you from falling apart was hearing your tears sear a hand stretched out catching the tears before they ripped you apart hoping they would give you a brand new start keeping you from your broken heart a hand stretched out played the biggest part giving your heart a brand new start a hand stretched out
