(Loni Rose)

If you were the ocean and I was a sailboat
Would I find the gumption to let myself sail
For lovin' and leavin', you're gone for a season
Is not what I'm looking for

If you were the laughter I'd hear ever after
The sound of your voice would make me sing
For lovin' and leavin', you're gone for a season
Is not what I'm looking for

I never thought that you would come
I never thought that I could love like this
This feeling inside me is growing
I never thought that you would come

I've been watching the sunrise whether you are the sunset
And I thought our faces would meet
But now that I found you
Like a wave on the sound you've washed my fears away

I never thought that you would come
I never thought that I could love like this
This feeling inside me is growing
I never thought that you would come

You are the voice I hear in my ears
You are the one that is prone to these tears
And you are the one that has stolen my heart
And I'm telling you from the start

I never thought that you would come
I never thought that I could love like this
This feeling inside me is growing
I never thought that you would come

I never thought that you would come
I never thought that I could love like this

This feeling inside me is growing
I never thought that you would come

I never thought that you would come
I never thought that you would come
