It's not my little life that you want to share, I was not enough too many times and now I'm scared

I have built a solid wall it was so many years ago, now you're cracking it

It's not my little world that you want to see I am nothing, so there's nothing to surprise you with

When you look at me that way, it falls to dust and I don't care you're taking over me

my heart is pounding in its cage and I can't make it stop again

My heart,
colder than a stone

it's not my little life that you want to see I can hear you,

but my eyes are still distracting me when you look at me that way, I cannot focus on your words, you're dissolving me.

It's not my little world, that you want to share I can see you,

but my mind still plays a different game, when you talk to me like that I cannot breathe, I can't escape you taking over me

my heart is pounding in it's cage
and I can't make it stop again.

My heart,
colder than a stone

Be the blood in my veins, the spark in my brain and I'll do the same

Be the dawn of my day, the sun to my rain
and I'll do the same

I'll do the same, just stay
