Ripping up pictures of you
Burning them so I will not be reminded Creating reasons to not like you
Turning them into shame and hate

Breaking all the things we had
Taking them so I won't be sad
Shouting out everything in mind
Doubting every lies behind
You thought I was nice and you trusted me
But now, girl you've made one mistake

One step, and another one to me
No more, but it's too late to run
You got me off the time we could've had
But I know it was all a lie, anyway

Making up sins I could have made
Faking all my sins when I want to get through Crushing my thoughts to all those pieces
Hushing all the voices that shatter peace

Looking at shadows that follow yourself
Locking the windows, so no one comes to me
Banging my head to every wall
Bringing up the noise because I won't want to fall
You thought I was nice and you trusted me
But now, girl you've made one mistake

One step, and another one to me
No more, but it's too late to run
You got me off the time we could've had
But I know it was all a lie, anyway

One step, and another one to me
No more, but it's too late to run
You got me off the time we could've had
But I know it was all a lie, anyway

Two steps, I trusted you
Three steps, I had a doubt

One step back, and I was able to give my mind
One left black, will you even care how it can be?

One step, and another one to me
No more, but it's too late to run
You got me off the time we could've had
But I know it was all a lie, anyway
