I could see the rain clouds over
The grey chased away the colours
Its hailing and storming all on the citizens
Leaving them running for their umbrellas

Hold on, hold on
She said to me,
It won't be long, wont be long
'till we all will see
The colours will return to their owners
And citizens emerge from the covers

I could see the fear take over
Hearts hardened to the sound of closeness
Its aching and pounding all on the citizens
Leaving them wishing they had a lover

Hold on, hold on
She said to me,
It wont be long, wont be long
'till we all will see
The lovers will emerge from their silence
And citizens return from the covers

And the lights on the streets go dark
But all the heaviness is in my heart
The colours on the leaves are grey
But i hold heaven in my heart today

The rainclouds begin to pour
And the greyness defeats us all
And i know she said its ok
But i'll take anything she will say
