The days behind you are haunting
Ones your living in now
Ghost of your past carries
The weight of your name

Where would you be, who are you
Without the scaring?
And the heels that stepped on you
That you cling to with all of your strength

Let go, free fall
Scary, I know, to forgive all the devils
Let go, I'll catch you
Scary, I know, understand what must be done

58 Guthrie Street
Old postcard you sent
To help close up wounds
That I love to reopen

Quarters in the tequila
On the streets of Houston
You can keep on drinking
Never drown out where you've been

Let go and free fall
It's scary, I know, to forgive all the devils
Let go, I'll catch you
It's scary, I know to understand what must be done

There is a statesman servant beneath
The thick skin of remembering
Armor for protection

Let go and free fall
It's scary, I know, to forgive all the devils
Let go, I'll catch you
It's scary, I know, to understand what must be done
