I've run after faden fantasies wished on many fallen stars.

I lost my fast and hungry love in the backseat of old cars.

But I learn to tell the right from wrong

And the good times from the sin.

And the keep on chasing rainbows

Cause I catch one now and then.

Now I put myself out of the lin without ever thinking twice

And more then one I lost it all and just one role over dice.

When my fold in money turns to change

And I loose more then I win

I keep on chasing rainbows

Cause I catch one now and then.

And I watched for the sunshine as every storm past trough.

Searching for that part of gold that's how I found you.

You're the sweetest dream, this lucky fool, as ever stumble in.

Let's keep on chasing rainbows

Cause we'll catch one now and then.

You're the sweetest dream, this lucky fool, as ever stumble in.

So help me chase my rainbows

And we'll catch one now and then.
