What do we count for?
We keep to ourselves.
Always doubt our eyes.
End up down in the ground
Because it always was and it always is.
A shadow in cold ground
And without, without a sound

You can love your knowledge-
All the things you learned in college
You can love your knowledge-
All the things you learned in college
You know we've already judged within
You know we've already judged within, within, within,
within

You know you can't go on kicking yourself
Until you're more sore and you can never be warm.
And through the darkest hurts of the MRI's
That eats away as if the sun burst from the sky.

You can love your knowledge-
All the things you learned in college
You can love your knowledge-
All the things you learned in college
You know we've already judged within
You know we've already judged within, within, within,
within

I can get myself down
I can find my way- can find my way
I can face, I can face
