(Kim Richey/Jennifer Kimball)

I saw him on the street today
He said I was looking better than ever
He smiled at me that same old way
While we talked about work and the weather
If I was shaking he sure couldn't tell
If my heart was breaking I hid it real well

I don't let my feelings show he doesn't even have a clue
I couldn't let a good thing go the love I gave was strong
and true
And I don't have to be ashamed I can hold my head up high
I was not the one to blame I never let him see me cry

Too soon there wasn't much to say
I checked my watch and said guess I'll be going
He touched me but I turned away
When the tears fell he had no way of knowing
There's no denying he still gets to me
But I'll only cry when I know he can't see

I don't let my feelings show he doesn't even have a clue
I couldn't let a good thing go the love I gave was strong
and true
high
I was not the one to blame I never let him see me cry

Never let him, never let him see me cry
Never let him, never let him
Never let him see me cry
Never let him see me cry
