It's just a room like any other four walls a window and a door
It's just a bed like any other it's just that you don't sleep here anymore
It's just a dream like any other that shatters when love falls apart
It's just the silence of this room that held our love that breaks my heart
(It's just a room) I tell myself each lonely night
(It's just a room) but when I say I'll be alright
It's just my heart that I'm deceiving
Cause deep inside there's no believing
It's just a room

A picture stands there on the dresser two lovers laughing arm in arm
Your fragrance lingers on my pillow and I pretend that you're not really gone
For just a moment I imagine I hear the door and you've come home
Until this empty bed reminds me that instead I live alone
(It's just a room) I tell myself...
(It's just a room) I tell myself...
