"At ten past nine or around midnight, I forgot the time", she said

She didn't want it in a letter so this is what I said

"If I could just, just touch Heaven

I would say that I did and it glows on my fingertips"

What we want the world can't offer

But we'll get it anyway

Or maybe we're crazy

She said, she was lost but now she's found

She said, we would never touch the ground

She said, all the right things, she said to me

And she got up and walked out without a scene

And she got up and walked out without a scene

Stop

So I brushed the hair from my eyes, turn too quickly

The sooner I stop it will be over

As I leave, you simply rescue me

And bring me closer, whisper and say

What we want the world can't offer

But we'll get it anyway

Or maybe we're crazy

She said, she was lost but now she's found

She said, she will never touch the ground

She said, all the right things, she said to me

And she got up and walked out without a scene

And she got up and walked out without a scene

And she got up and walked out without a scene

One, two, three, four, five, six, seven calls to her cell phone

Without a good reply

Seven, six, five, four, three, two, one times

She picked up the phone and screamed, "I wish you would die"

Screamed, "Why why why, do you call me all the time?"

Screamed, "Why why why, do you meddle in my life?"
I said, "I tried to be the one and I tried to be your friend
But you up and left me screaming in the end"

She said, she was lost but now she's found
She said, she will never touch the ground
She said, all the right things, she said to me
And she got up and walked out without a scene

She said, she was lost but now she's found
She said, she will never touch the ground
She said, all the right things, she said to me
And she got up and walked out without a scene
And she got up and walked out without a scene
