[The story of Demons]

[Equirhodon't:]

In times of dark ages
Demons of extinction raised
And opened gates to all realms.
Naked beings were leaved at the mercy
Of withering power, as stalls fall.

[Old Ones:]

Ninety-nine Gates are already closed
Their worlds are ruined.
Only last gate is withstanding
Protected by immense power
Mages are defending their world.

[Durron:]

Demons are insane and rage with anger
Who is rising to oppose them?
What are these powers?
Which is protecting this world?

Resilient like Mages

Why should so?

[Leviathan:]
Black magic is aeonic, powerful
Demons hold their world.
Who was drive them into the battle
Which hasn't winner
Which will have the end?

[Equirhodon't:]
No one knows, and don't understand
This endless urge
Conquer the mystery and mysticism
Volition of Excellency
Hunger for eternity.

So the struggle lasts to these days
And will last forever.
You are only ordinary humans,
Humans before gates.
Before closed gates!
Forever!
Forever and alone!
You stupid humans
Forever!

The last went away, I stayed alone among graves,
serene, silvern,
In which rests thousand tales, which nobody knows,
Which nobody listen in and which nobody narrates ...
