As today came I was feeling that I could not be found Buried and extinguished your kiss it stirred the ground Below my ashen covers my spirit locked in ice
And I began to believe a fire storm would be nice

Take care my heart's desire now I must let you go Forget all that I wanted the cinders bloom and glow Take care my quiet fire leave me to freeze again Maybe in another lifetime together we'll remain

Now all that life had taught me till then had gone away To joyful were the moments so bright but now they're gray So old right from the start too much was said to soon With words that burn the heart but leave our souls so cool
