if fortune feigned a smile i'd search for hairline cracks i'd fear the interfered i'd know there's no pushing back those touching on for more than i mean to keep out of reach take far more than they need restrain the bitten hand that feeds the prettiest of evil no one ever believes walk blind talking kind there nothing going on in my mind i wish you ran rings 'round me you wish you ran rings 'round me i wish if i could just wish it away the pieces run through my fingers and all for you to own
and this all matters you couldn't leave me alone
