This is a problem, it needs to be solved by you
So don't just lie there and make your excuses
It doesn't matter where we go tonight
It ends in disaster, it ends in disaster and
And I think we've gone full circle now

We've sat together, through every type of silence
There is in this town, there is in this town
And this house is built for somebody else's intrigue
And if things will go wrong then just let them go wrong
Now

This is a problem, it needs to be solved by you
So don't just lie there and make your excuses

Late at night and I'm not walking home in the cold,
On my own, you don't half pick your moments to talk
About
The things you never wanna talk about

It doesn't matter where we go tonight
It ends in disaster, it ends in disaster and
And I think we've gone full circle now

We've sat together, through every type of silence
There is in this town, there is in this town
And this house is built for somebody else's intrigue
And if things will go wrong then just let them go wrong
Now

How many people do ya hear say they've found Themselves?
At our age it just kinda happens so don't panic

I wouldn't bother talking to poetic friends cause it's More than likely they just wanna get their ends away

This town is emptied for the last time, for the last
Time
