I could punch your face
When you say IÁm good
I could dress in lace and paint my face
And go out on a cruise
In the neighbourhood
Become a prostitute
Or become a priest
I could fuck anyone
Every girl, every boy
At least one in every town
ThatÁs to say the least
WouldnÁt that be radical?
WouldnÁt that be radical?

(but)

The most radical thing to do
Is to love someone who loves you
Even then the world is Seemingly telling you not to
I donÁt know whatÁs wrong or right,
But I know whatÁs worth a fight
The most radical thing is to do what
Your heart tells you to ÁCause I do assure you
That I do adore you

I could cut myself
And take it to the streets
I could dress like a freak,
Leave my blankets in a heap,
Stop brushing my teeth for ninety weeks

Throw down the government,

Become the president
I could try every drug
Or give everyone a hug
Set every prisoner free
And claim Iâ€™m Jesusâ€™ son

Wouldnâ€™t that be radical?
Yes all of that would be radical all right
But the most radical thing to do
Is to love someone who loves you
Even then the world is
Seemingly telling you not to
I donâ€™t know whatâ€™s wrong or right,
But I know whatâ€™s worth a fight
The most radical thing is to do what
Your heart tells you to â€™Cause I do assure you
That I do adore you

I wish that I could be that radical,
that radical
I wish that I could be that radical,
that radical
