Carrie, there's no need to cry anymore, you got everything you need, it's been right there inside you since the day you were born, all you gotta do is take everything else
and let it wash out right into the sea, well snowflakes, their no sign of spring coming now, dark clouds got you on your knees, no use letting all this winter bring you down, ain't no time to fret and cry when you got a whole great big world to see, and when the heavy sky breaks and beams of sunlight fall down all around your face you will remember that its good to be alive, and I will meet you in the sunshine in the morning, in this short life there is only one thing you need to know, and when you know it you will see that all that is is all that be and there's nothing else and that's just the way it goes.
and beams of sunlight fall down all around your face
you will remember that it's good to be alive, oh and I will meet you in the sunshine in the morning, and I will meet you in the sunshine in the morning.
