Sometimes I wish time was endless,
But it all comes to an end sometime,
We need to embrace what lies ahead

But you are gone now, there's nothing left to do
The last words I couldn't tell you
The last look I never gave you

I cry at nights for your return,
But I only see you, I see you getting away
I try to forget I failed you
All I can feel are your eyes on me

In dreams I talk to you,
And somehow it calms me down,
I wish I could turn back time

Birth and death, both part of life

And difficult to understand.

Joy and Pain, feelings we're meant to go through Everything's a part of this "divine plan".

I cry at nights for your return,
But I only see you, I see you getting away
I try to forget I failed you
All I can feel are your eyes on me

In this punishment we call life,
Mankind makes it's doom or it's price.
Birth and death, a part of life but
All I will never feel again are your eyes on me.
