Hang a picture up on your wall
Tighten all the nails so it don't fall
In this picture, could have been a picture of my face Something painful, went and took its place

If he can't have you, guess that no one else will Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile
as I frown
Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile
as I frown

Drink your coffee in the morning,
And at night, go and drink your beer
All along you don't feel so welcome here
And I walk by, and you steer clear
You always said, it'd come passionate here
Don't like what you see, you don't like what you hear

Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile
as I frown
Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile
as I frown
