I woke up without you.
You'd written me a note.
It said we were over. You're better off alone.
It's dark out, The clock reads, it's 33 degrees.
I guess I'm alone now, at least you left the key.

But you'll call me. Cause baby it's the best when you
call me.
I wont be your regret.

Another lonely day when it's cold and it's gray.
Sitting here to stay away from the rest of the day.
With nothing going my way, seems the world has
turned on me.
At least for today.
At least just from me.

I rinsed up, I'm dressed now.
I'm just about to leave.
I walked past the nightstand where our picture used to be.
The phone rings, silence, I think it could be you.
Instead it's the girl for the bill that's overdue.

But you'll call me. Cause baby it's the best when you
call me.
I wont be your regret.

Another lonely day when it's cold and it's gray.
Sitting here to stay away from the rest of the day.
With nothing going my way, seems the world has
turned on me.
At least for today.
At least just from me.
At least just from me.

The sky starts to rain on me as I attempt to leave.
Car just won't start, it just seems to be dead.
I called my work to say I might be coming late.
They tell me I am no longer needed.

Another lonely day.

But you'll call me. Cause baby, it's the best when you
call me.
I won't be your regret.

Another lonely day when it's cold and it's gray.
Sitting here to stay away from the rest of the day.
With nothing going my way, seems the world has
turned on me.
At least for today.
At least just from me.
At least just from me.
