Red, brown and gold I found one fall day in the setting sun.

Showing me the path to go if I just dare.

It was earlier that year I found color one in my collection,

In a flower carried in your hair.

Since that day I've captured all the colors

Our story is built upon.

Painting pictures in my soul all down memory lane

While waiting 'til I see you again.

Chorus

I capture every color in a box of joy and pleasure

Where grey is just a shadow of the past.

If anyone need color in their life I will be sharing.

Have some happycolor on your walls and hair it lasts.

Your shiny lips gave me the third color and every time I see them

I'm shivering just like time when we first kissed.

When a fire truck is hauling by there's a smile upon my face,

Our fire, I am sure, they'll always miss.

I have almost captured all the colors

Of the image when I miss you.

And the colors will explode in a firework that shows

Every time I get to see you again.

Chorus

On a summer meadow every shade of green.

From the shining moonlight silver bright and clean.

In a winter snowstorm the color was white.

We will find the final color here tonight.

I will paint the world with happycolor too

Happycolor I have found because of you.

Chorus
