The ground, my fear, the end is near,
The wind in my ears is all that I hear.
And through it all my tears still fall,
Terminal Velocity anti-law.
Betrayed by you and betrayed by myself,
Pictures thumbling down off the shelf,
Frames, glass, memories past,
Moments in time, a cameras flash,

Of the fire, the desire,
My melting point is not much higher,
I'm holding on or I'mstalling,
From the one who's got me.

This word keeps falling farther,
The skies below me,
The ground is closing in.
This hollow shell holds too much pressure,
The oxygen grows thin.

Say to me, Say to me, you leave me empty.
Say to me, say to me, you leave me on my knees.

In this defining moment, I must land on my feet.
I only do this...
For the one,
Who breaks my heart.

And crashing down, I hear the sound,
Of a broken heart that fails to pound,
To beat, in this emotional retreat,
Tumbling through the sky, head over feet.
My hands reach up but my weight soars down
I react, to my grasp, when only air can be found.
I close my eyes, the whisper of the wind,
A calm grows, the lights become dim.

Of the fire, the desire,
My melting point is not much higher,
I'm holding on or I'mstalling,
From the one who's got me.

I can't breath,
I can't breath as you,
Say to me.

I can see it driving me,
I can see it driving me into the ground.
