Doorways open up and close more ways to a punchline

They're all laughing at your clothes, standing in the lunch line

You're the talk of the town cause you're up and you're down

It's a cycle, I've found, it always comes around

But I will still be laughing, yes I will still be laughing

Air raids in the afternoon, the children are playing Switchblades, colored red balloons, no one hears your praying

And it comes back to you, all the things that you do

Will come looking for you, will come looking for you

But I will still be laughing, yes I will still be laughing

Doorways lead to other rooms, always leave you lying

Face down in a stranger's tomb, didn't know you were dying

And you rise and you fall, and you wait for the call

You're watching the walls, you're watching the walls

But I will still be laughing, I will still be laughing

Yes I will still be laughing, I will still be laughing
