Verse 1:

Curiosity drives me, questions I keep givin
And still Death as yet to find me though I'm Cheshire grinnin,
I'm livin in a palace and continuously sippin
From the Chalice of Wonderland,
My talent is wonderin I'm a wonder-man, Searchin the land with an urgent plan to murder the
shams,
Spit a whirlwind of truth and surprise the world like a turtle that ran,
The taste is bland, lookin at the space I span,
On my own so I look to the heavens with a question
Hopin that an answer lands,
I know one will, and when it does I'll put it in a test tube,
Shake, spill, watch, wait and debate it,
Experiment to identify it's best use,
And I get a little stressed too,
Comin up with ways I can bless you,
Maybe if I just walk this path you won't look back and you'll follow me
But that's too obvious,
Everybody's gotta be a lobbyist,
Pushin their opinions on the audience,
Laughin at the truth in the haughtiest,
Manner while I'm lookin at the loftiest,
Wisdom not just a shot of bliss, the thought of this Search for knowledge has me thinkin,
Curiosity's a modest risk

Hook:

Part of me is satisfied, part of me is not,
All of me is askin why I am here cause
Curious reflections, bring up quite a lot
And I'm under the impression that I will never
Stop askin these questions, stop askin for more,
I feel I'm bein tested and so I search for
Any given lessons, anything in store,
Continue with the questions,
These are my curious reflections

Verse 2:

Why do I write songs?

Do I just have too much to say about what's right and wrong?

Should I make my lyrics complex, and verses long?

Or should I make them short and sweet to get my point across?

Which is better? Can you really judge a piece of art,
By it's letters if it's true to the writer and it's straight from the heart?

Which is better, to give or to receive?

For one you might be blessed more but without the other it's incomplete.

Does that make me a puzzle piece in the big picture?

Is someone's destiny dependent on if I deliver?

That makes me think of my father's father figures
And how my dad broke the cycle when he fathered me in a bigger

Way, he gave me faith, that I can do the same,
Son or daughter either way be the father of the light
Put the "sun" their sunny days,

My brain is burstin with these never-ending questions
I'm Carried By The Current of my curious reflections

Hook:

Part of me is satisfied, part of me is not,
All of me is askin why I am here cause
Curious reflections, bring up quite a lot
And I'm under the impression that I will never
Stop askin these questions, stop askin for more,
I feel I'm bein tested and so I search for
Any given lessons, anything in store,
Continue with the questions,
These are my curious reflections

Bridge:

My curious reflections, my serious investments,
These questions I am pressed with,
Solutions are like jeans, I'm just shoppin for the best fit,
My curious reflections, my serious investments,
These questions I am pressed with,
Solutions are like jeans, I'm just shoppin for the best fit
Scratch my chin as I mess with My curious reflections

Hook:

Part of me is satisfied, part of me is not,
All of me is askin why I am here cause
Curious reflections, bring up quite a lot
And I'm under the impression that I will never
Stop askin these questions, stop askin for more,

I feel I'm bein tested and so I search for
Any given lessons, anything in store,
Continue with the questions,
