Come on baby let's go outside,
I wanna see how you look in the moonlight.
Ain't gonna do much sleepin' tonight.
I remember when we were kids,
You were somethin' else even back then,
But you're all grown up now that's for sure.
Now you're a woman and I'm a man,
From your lips to your golden tan,
You say you love my songs.
Honey, I'm your biggest fan.

Slip out the door let's take a ride.
We can get lost and drive all night.
We'll find a little place where we can hide.
And listen to the crickets sing,
While we dance in the headlights,
To a back road lullaby.

On a back road,
On a back road,
On a back road,
Back road lullaby.

On a back road,
On a back road...

Take it slow with a little small talk,
And every now and then an awkward pause.
I run my fingers through your hair.
Turn it up and we can sing out loud,
The way you dance it could draw a crowd.
But tonight I got you all to myself.

Now you're a woman and I'm a man,
From my boots to my wandering hands,
I wanna kiss your lips,
Honey, I'm your biggest fan.

Slip out the door let's take a ride.
We can get lost and drive all night.
We'll find a little place where we can hide.

And listen to the crickets sing,
While we dance in the headlights,
To a back road lullaby.

Slip out the door let's take a ride.
We can get lost,
We can get lost and drive all night.

Slip out the door let's take a ride.
(Let's take a ride now baby)
We can get lost and drive all night.
(All night now baby)
We'll find a little place where we can hide.
And listen to the crickets sing,
While we dance in the headlights,
Dancin' in the headlights,
To a back road lullaby.

On a back road,
On a back road,
On a back road,
Back road lullaby.

On a back road,
On a back road,
On a back road,
Back road lullaby.

On a back road,
On a back road,
On a back road,
Back road lullaby.

On a back road,
On a back road...
