I see a little boy, sitting in a cardboard box
Now he's got no mother there to mend his socks
At the age of innocence, young girl so sweet Now she sells herself to drunks on the street

Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
I need much more so I sing this song
Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
Without the hope of love I can't go on

Tear stained faces, twisted in pain Gather round the grave
While bloodstained hands held high in prayer
Are killing in the name of faith

What kind of faith is this, to cause so much pain?

Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
I need much more so I sing this song
Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
Without the hope of love I can't go on

Children starve in the cold of winter
Famine spreads and disease is rife Yet gunshots still echo through the rubble and broken glass
Increasing the strife

The tools of war and hate seem more precious than life

Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
I need much more so I sing this song
Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
Without the hope of love I can't go on

I see a man appalled by the scenes he sees every night on TV
He stuffs his face in his cosy home Sits back, thinks "too bad" and drinks tea and carries on When will we learn to love someone Someone else but me

Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
We need much more so I sing this song
Where's the love gone, where's the love gone, where's
the love gone?
Without the hope of love this world goes wrong
This world goes wrong
