the pain by Bea Van Der Maat
Broken motherheart, when you're gone?
Always scared when you come along
Childhood dreams fade away
And they can't even stop the pain
Everytime again, you stir op my mind
Hoping that what I feel could turn me blind
For the child you were once
And the man you become
Baby, give me just one reason (why) you're still my son
Sometimes you rise, sometimes you fall
But tell me: who is looking after you at all?
Broken motherheart, when you're gone?
But I'm always scared when you come along
Childhood dreams fade away
But all they can't stop is the pain
Stars are in the sky, I pick out one for you
The moon is in the night, is there a wish I can do?
Lake a stranger in the night
With your sour sweet lies
Ever lasting chance, can you look into my eyes?
Sometimes you cry, sometimes you shout,
Will you beat me up again, till I help you out?
Broken motherheart, when you're gone?
But I'm always scared when you come along
Childhood dreams fade away
And they can't even stop the pain
And I wish I could forgive you one day
But my hopes and dreams just fade away
If they could only release a little pain
