"Housecat"

I gave her a back scratch a black attack
And now shes feeding and feeding
And always deceiving and shes always wanting more Never satisfied with simple household chores
When I gave her an inch, she bit off my arm
And when I started to twitch
I realized I got more, so much more Than Id ever bargained for

We use to go out on Sundays and have a little fun
She use to wait around the door for my workday to be done
She use to owe it all to me
I was her knight in shining armor
Maybe its the cocaine or maybe the pills
Or its the side effects of her freewill
Thats got her tied up and tangled in knots
Forcing smiles and getting off

Maybe its the drugs or maybe its love
Or maybe its something that I never really wanted
anyway
But thats okay, shes my housecat

Just one more is all I ask of you
If you were me you would too
And their faces all look so jaded
Like their souls have been confiscated
And put away in little boxes
Where scientists remove the toxins
And eat up the best parts of the brain
Just to be socially sane

Maybe its the drugs or maybe its love
Or maybe its something that I never really wanted
But thats okay, shes my housecat

Maybe its the feeling of contempt
Or maybe its the feeling of regret
That made me hate the ways

That she couldnt ever change

Maybe I know I can survive
Her last ditch suicide
And now I know that I was blind
But she was never all that kind
