He was just a boy of seventeen
And I was older by a year
And we spent everything we ever made
To get away from here

We got married in the winter time
At the Open Doors Cafe
No matter how he tried
He couldn't find the peace of mind to stay, oh, no

All the glitter out in Hollywood
All the stars that never shine
Oh, they can't hold a candle to your wind
Could you roll me, roll me back in time?

Got a job and worked the early shift
And I spent hours by the phone
Promises are easy to forget
When there's too much time alone

But you've got something they can't argue with
That's what all the people say
He's just waiting for the obvious
His star is on his way, anyday

All the glitter out in Hollywood
All the stars that never shine
Oh, they can't hold a candle to your wind
Could you roll me, could you roll me, could you roll me?

Just this side of sunrise
You can feel it in the air
That something's bound to happen
It's just right there

Everybody loves you
It's so easy to see
But it's only, but it's only
It's only, it's only in your dreams

I woke up to find him standing there
With his suitcase in his hand

All the glitter out in Hollywood
All the stars that never shine
Oh, they can't hold a candle to your wind
Could you roll me, could you roll me?

All the glitter out in Hollywood
All the stars that never shine
Oh, they can't hold a candle to your wind
Could you roll me, could you roll me?
Could you roll me, roll me back in time?
