Another life, another day
Another reason to become insane
I fight my fears, I want you my dear
I have to go my way to see things clear
It's time to let them go now
I sense that something new is here

Can we forget what we have done here?
And clean up this mess of doubt and dust
Can we forget what we have done here?
Or will the grudge catch us?

Another day, another life
I can't remember when did we arrive?
Will we ever leave, or will we stay?
Can you imagine a safer way?
And if this story ever comes to an end
There will be no more reason to pretend
No more lies are needed
And we will end the final day
In the brightest way

Can we forget what we have done here?
And clean up this mess of doubt and dust
Can we forget what we have done here?
Or will the grudge catch us?

Every duty should be done
Every question should be gone
Cause every victim of this land
Deserves a helping hand
