Into another day
Dull from consistency
I can see only one thing
I am Losing velocity

The whole world's gone mad
Oh my head sounds
Just like that.

Like a tree left without its leaves
On another dirty city street
As the earth moves slowly under my feet.
I am losing velocity

We've forgotten what we had to be.
It was so important then
Now they're numb to you and you to me
We found the flower
But cannot find the stem.

The curve is too controlled
The water's getting colder
Where do we have to go?
Must I patiently atrophy as I watch you watching me?
We are losing velocity.

I don't care for your complacency
It all remains to be seen
And I can't guarantee anythingv But I do feel the mystery

And I know it was meant to be
But how do I know I'm still alive?
Cause I'm losing velocity
If we stop moving
How do we survive?
