

38th Parallel "Who Am I?"

Visit "Who Am I?" on MotoLyrics.com

Made like a mirror to reflect His glory
But the glass got smashed, bought a counterfeit story
We gave into pride, sacrificed life, on that day we died inside
Outside we ignited a rebellion, an infectious disease That labels us felons cold and alone, ever wandering in search of a home

Hearts breaking, hands shaking in time with our hearts
vibrating
We say bridges to yesterday are burned Seasons over, all those leaves have turned we cannot look down
We can never keep our gaze locked on the ground
As we stand with wide wide eyes as our world comes crashing down

Who am I to say I'm right?
Who am I to say you're wrong?
Play judge, look you in the eye
Who am I to throw the stones?

Who am I to say I'm right?
Who am I to say you're wrong?
Play judge, look you in the eye
Who am I to throw the stones?

Now I remember when trust went for free
Sold for a smile on the face of a fantasy
Truth found her home in the pages of fairy tales Decadent words formed the phrases for dreams that failed
Now trust is a costly commodity giving it away is the mark of absurdity
And truth is a homeless traveler hoping in the night to be found

Hearts breaking, hands shaking in time with our hearts
vibrating
We say bridges to yesterday are burned
Seasons over, all those leaves have turned we cannot
look down

We can never keep our gaze locked on the ground
As we stand with wide wide eyes as our world comes
crashing down

Who am I to say I'm right?
Who am I to say you're wrong?
Play judge, look you in the eye
Who am I to throw the stones?

Who am I to say I'm right?
Who am I to say you're wrong?
Play judge, look you in the eye
Who am I to throw the stones?

And we wave goodbye to our innocence
And we wave goodbye to our ignorance
And we wave goodbye to our nursery mindsets
Abandoning cribs of complacency

And we wave goodbye to our innocence
And we wave goodbye to our ignorance
And we wave goodbye to our nursery mindsets
Abandoning cribs of complacency

Who am I to say I'm right?
Who am I to say you're wrong?
Play judge, look you in the eye
Who am I to throw the stones?

Who am I to say I'm right?
Who am I to say you're wrong?
Play judge, look you in the eye
Who am I to throw the stones?

Visit 38th Parallel page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.