i've grown tired of watching you sitting in the coach with eyes crossed as you're talking who ever made you think it's ok to not ever listen
'cause you never listen to me i smile back at you, i fake while you continue to breake everything i have ever needed

and i need you now

who should have taken your place
when you walked out when everything crashed on our shoulders who where we suppose to trust?
when we loved you,
you couldn't love us back and now i'm suppose to forgive you fuck that you should have learned by now after all the misstakes you go on denying what you've become who ever told you that i'd be fine if you never listen still, you can't hear me

when everything crashed on child shoulders
who where we suppose to trust?

who should have stopped you who should have cared you should have seen us you were suppose to be there

just fuck it all
