I dont expect you to listen as I open up and speak of whats mine You dont have to care if I breake down As you tell me, I'm weak and fragile as usual

I dont expect you to be there as I cry
My tears wont have to be your problem And these hands wont ever reach out for you or try to hold you back if you're leaving

I dont believe that were ment to be if thats what you're thinking
And I dont trust people who says we're good together
'cause what do they really know?
I dont believe that it's written in the stars
as you, I believe what I can see and what I'm looking at right now is your sad face, begging me to be someone
I'm not

I dont expect you to hold my hand as we walk down the street I dont expect you to give up everything just a little bit, to make some room for me

I dont expect you to wait here as I try to get trough this mess that we've created You dont have to carry my weights on your back with you, I'm used to fighting on my own

I dont believe that were ment to be
'cause what do they really know?
I dont believe that it's written in the stars
as you, I believe what I can see
and what I'm looking at right now

to be someone
I'm not

I dont expect you to stand by me and love me forever more I wouldnt ask you for a reason if you decide to turn your back, walk out of the door and leave my life

I dont believe that were ment to be
'cause what do they really know?
I dont believe that it's written in the stars
and what I'm looking at right now
to be someone
I'm not

I try to stand a little bit taller, be a little more braver but without your support, it's so much harder
So much harder
