Without you
I walked into quicksand
I drowned in the sea
I cut myself when I tried to make a dinner for one and without you, I guess I'm done

Without you
I ran into a burning building and I was poisoned
I fell out of an airplane in the middle of nowhere and without you, I cant get anywhere

And it no longer matter if you hear me as I scream and it no longer matter that I can't see your face Because its not changing anyways

Without you
I can even write a poem
I cant hear the music
I reach for something higher and end up on the ground baby, without you, how do I go on?

And I no longer care if I get hurt or if I bleed
And it no longer matter what I say or what I do Because I only wanna be with you

And the truth is now a scary thing Admitting the sorrow and Admitting the pain
And to be honest, I'd do anything
To get you back, to hold you again

Without you
I walked into quicksand
I drowned in the sea
I cut myself when I tried to make a dinner for one

For one,
without you, for one
