Punk rocks 'cause I saw it on a tee shirt,
By now you should have heard it all before,
You talk like a pervert not a teacher,
Sometime I oughta settle up the score,
So watch out we're pretentious teenage rockers,
Comin' at you with a mission and a fight,
Have you seen what they're keeping in their lockers,
This stuff doesn't happen over night.

You put so much stake in being different,
In being different yea you're all being the same,
If you put somebody down for not complying to your Standards,
Can't you see that you're just playing to their game?

So talk your shit, you hypocrite,
You all fit in, you all fit in.
Rock and roll asshole, rock and roll asshole.

You're smoking cigarettes and mouthing off to Strangers,
Sometimes I wonder if you even really care,
These girls are screaming like they don't know they're
In danger,
I wonder if they think that I don't notice that they're
There.
But I'm glad to play my part in a rebellion made of Taffy,
Sticky, gooey, and so easy to digest,
And I hope that we've made each other happy,
I hope you still know how to resist.
